The Men’s Project

Providing leadership on the reduction of violence and other harmful behaviours prevalent among boys and men, and building new approaches to improve their wellbeing and keep families and communities safe.

Paul Zappa & Michael Fendel
Context

- Jesuit Social Services have more than 40 years experience working with boys and men.

- Each year, Jesuit Social Services works directly with over 5,000 male participants across a range of programs.

- Too many boys and men are struggling to live safe, healthy, and fulfilling lives.

- More needs to be done to support boys and men to be their best selves.
We have a problem with men and boys…
Not all of them, but too many.

- 9 out of 10 prisoners are male
- On average, every four hours a male suicide
- 95% of victims of violence - whether male or female - experience violence from a male perpetrator
Aims of the Man Box study

• To understand the pressures young men experience around being a ‘real man’

• To understand whether young men personally agree with the social messages of the Man Box

• To understand the influence, if any, that agreeing with those rules has on the lives of young men and those around them
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KdRrjCOqZYZ
Two thirds of young men have been told that a “real man” behaves a certain way.
The Man Box is the set of beliefs in society that place pressure on men to be a certain way.

The Man Box Rules

- Self sufficiency
- Acting tough
- Physical attractiveness
- Rigid gender roles
- Heterosexuality & homophobia
- Hypersexuality
- Aggression & control
The Man Box rules...

- Don’t cry or openly express emotions except for anger
- Be tough & athletic
- Don’t show weakness or fear
- Demonstrate power & control especially over women and others who are “less manly”
- Show aggression & dominance
- Be a protector
- Don’t be “like a woman”
- Don’t be “gay”
- Show strength & courage
- Don’t require/seek help
- Women are (sexual) objects, not equals/friends

- Stop it Now! And Worried About Sex and Pornography Project

Building knowledge about attitudes regarding masculine norms and what works to engage men and boys

- Unpacking the Man Box
- Man Box in Schools
- African Australian Men’s Scoping Study
Modelling Respect and Equality (MoRE)

• Challenges problematic expressions of masculinity that are drivers of family violence and works with a strengths-based approach to promote a positive and healthy culture of masculinity and respectful relationships.

• Recruits, trains and supports male and female role models who interact with boys and men on a frequent basis and in a range of settings, including community groups, schools, sporting clubs, and workplaces.

• Through tailored training and ongoing support, role models develop the knowledge, awareness, skills and confidence to become influencers for change in their community.
Discussion

• How does the concept of the Man Box apply to your work?
• How can we use it to promote healthier masculinity?
• Can it help to engage boys and men in PVAW work?
• What else would you like to know?
